

Hundred Year Hurricane Map

This map illustrates where hurricanes have made landfall in Florida over the past 100 years. Past experience does not necessarily indicate future events; other areas may be equally vulnerable.

Your insurance coverage decisions should not be based on this data. Those decisions are just too important. Instead, contact a licensed insurance agent for a professional evaluation of your situation.

Find more tips, resources, and valuable information about insuring against hurricane losses at The Browning Agency's consumer education page. Visit: www.browningagency.com/learn.htm

